COLOMBO 00000035 002 OF 002

16. (SBU) The SLMM reacted both to recent Sri Lankan Air Force strikes against LTTE targets and to the recent spate of bus bombings by sending investigators and posting the findings on the SLMM website. The SLMM issued press statements deploring the targeting of civilians and urging both parties to observe their obligations under the CFA to spare the civilian population. However, it refrained from assigning blame to the LTTE as the likely perpetrator of the bus bombings, presumably for lack of clear proof.

17. (C) COMMENT: The SLMM continues to play an indispensable role in sorting out fact from fiction on the ground. There is no other authority we trust for impartial assessments of the realities regarding the numerous acts of violence. It has recently distanced itself from its previous approach of "ruling" against one of the warring parties. It is now investigating incidents that are not part of a more-or-less conventional armed conflict, but include acts of terrorism. Perhaps this is what Solvberg meant by becoming more "relevant." It is hard to see how the mission will be able to operate effectively without having a forward base of operations closer to the main theaters of hostilities in the north and east. Still, the strategy of avoiding a static presence that could present a clear target is probably a wise one. Embassy will follow up on the SLMM's request for closer cooperation, especially any requests for U.S. assistance.
